Letter from the EB

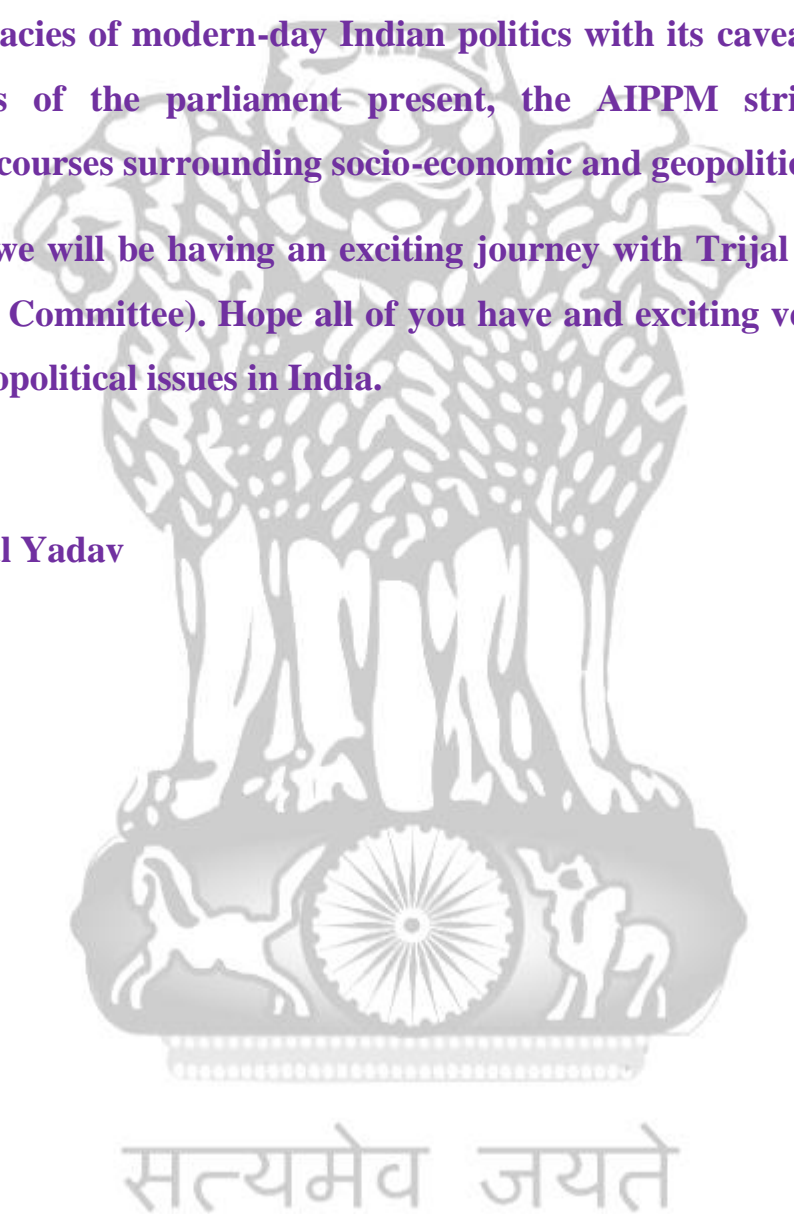

Esteemed delegates,

All India Political Parties Meet is a forum for discussion and deliberation that is being called before the session of the parliament takes place. Here delegates delve into the nuances and intricacies of modern-day Indian politics with its caveats. With members from both houses of the parliament present, the AIPPM strives to encourage deliberation on discourses surrounding socio-economic and geopolitical issues.

In this discussion we will be having an exciting journey with Trijal Yadav and Srikar (The Chairs of the Committee). Hope all of you have and exciting venture with us and know about the geopolitical issues in India.

Regards

D Srikar and Trijal Yadav

Reference and Tips to Be a Great Delegate

You would be surprised how many people miss this. To start discussing your point of view, you must actually have one well formed. Make sure that before you walk into the room, you:

1. Understand the topic fully,
2. Know your country's stance on the case very well
3. Are prepared with a strong opening statement

Do not just come prepared with papers or speeches written down, but with your delegation's weaknesses, previous issues, economic weaknesses, and questionable actions about the case and prepare rebuttals for them. Other delegates will definitely be prepared, so it is your job to be well aware and prepared as well. Anticipate attacks from other delegates, and come up with answers to refute them. Receiving criticisms/attacks from your delegation can harm your influence, so be sure to address them. In addition, if your rebuttal was not ready in time, you may have a weaker chance regaining respect in the committee.
